

Introduction

Diseases are just one factor that may produce spots and other symptoms on barley. They may be caused by the genetics of the cultivar, the environment, agricultural chemicals or even nutrient deficiencies.

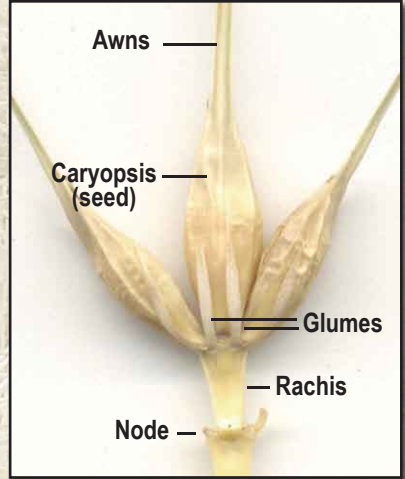

Determining the cause of any severe symptoms is important because a disease may lead to economic losses, but could be prevented or treated.

Different solutions are needed for chemical injury or nutrient deficiencies.

Parts of the Barley Plant

Parts of the Barley Spike